Instructor: Amy Lindenberger (www.amylindenberger.com)

When we think of transparent things such as glass and water, we think of it as clear. How do you draw something that is clear? Anything that is clear is actually made up of the things surrounding it, and reflecting into it. Drawing each segment, one at a time, simplifies the project. The vibrant hues of the flowers in the vase, rendered with only a few colors, add a lovely balance to the reflection of light seen in the vase itself.

Amy Lindenberger, who is a certified instructor under Ann Kulberg, brings a fun-filled 2-day colored pencil workshop to MCAC. We will learn how to portray transparent and reflective items. You will leave with a beautiful piece of art done by you.

Amy uses Prismacolor colored pencils on black paper. Paper is provided for you and a list of all pencil colors and supplies will be emailed to you after registering with payment. For more information contact Nancy Owens at nancypaint@verizon.net.
